KENNETH G. ORMISTON IS IN CUSTODY

FORMER OPERATOR OF ANGELUS TEMPLE RADIO ON WAY WEST

Taken In Harrisburg By Detectives Waives
Extradition

HARRISBURG, Pa., Dec. 9.—Kenneth G. Ormiston, arrested here by Chicago Detectives Charles Donnelly and Harry Elwood in connection with the Almee McPherson case in Los Angeles, left here today for Los Angeles, having waived extradition.

Ormiston submitted to arrest willingly and expressed a desire to return to Los Angeles to answer charges of subornation of perjury and conspiracy to defeat justice, the charges growing out of the McPherson case. He formerly was Mrs. McPherson's chief radio operator at Angelus temple.

Three detectives, Charles Donnelly and Harry Elwood, of Chicago, and Oscar Carson, of Harrisburg, arrested the missing radio operator in his apartment here early this morning. Police said he had occupied the apartment for the last two or three weeks.

Utmost secrecy shrouded Ormiston's departure from Harrisburg in custody of the detectives. He was slipped out of the Pennsylvania capital so quietly that no one other than those closely connected with the case knew when he left.

It was understood at police headquarters that the Ormiston party would go to Chicago first and from there to Los Angeles. Local police refused to reveal on what train the party left but it is believed that Ormiston and his captors boarded Pennsylvania train No. 13 for Pittsburgh.

This train left Harrisburg at 8 p. m. and was due in Pittsburgh at 1:50 this afternoon. If the party is aboard this train, they must change trains at Pittsburgh for Chicago, as No. 13 is bound for St. Louis.

Although Asa Keyes, district attorney of Los Angeles, was expected to arrive here today to take charge of Ormiston, the Chicago detectives were not inclined to await his arrival, apparently desiring to get en route to Chicago before Ormiston had a chance to change his mind regarding extradition.

Donnelly and Elwood arrived here from Chicago last night to make the arrest. Elwood having been on the trail of Ormiston for some time, it was said.

When arrested in the apartment which he has occupied in Harrisburg, Ormiston, who was using the name of "Fred Lininger," immediately admitted his identity. He told police that he has been making his living by writing and soliciting subscriptions for radio magazines.

TENNESSEE SENATOR SLUSH FUND TARGET

Charge Tyson Spent $1,800,000 To Win Nomination —Attack Opens Way For Probe Of Southern Balloting

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—The sensational charge that Senator Lawrence D. Tyson (D), of Tennessee, spent $1,800,000 to win his senatorial nomination two years ago featured a request filed today with the senate elections committee for a complete investigation of the 1924 Tennessee primary.

Coming as a surprise to Democrats, there were indications that Republican leaders would support the request in order to open fire on senatorial elections in the South. The charges against Tyson were filed by John Randolph Neal, a defeated gubernatorial candidate.

Neal demanded hearings on a petition filed with the committee two years ago by Benjamin Hooper, member of the railway labor board, which alleged "gross frauds" in the nomination and election of Tyson. The Hooper petition, signed by 200 Tennessee citizens, Neal said, had lain dormant before the committee since 1924. He asked immediate action on it.

Neal also attacked the primaries in other Southern states, declaring they were controlled solely by the political factions in power.

Merry Christmas Is Denied Postman; Late Greetings And Gifts Are Blamed

HELP THE POSTMAN! MAIL EARLY!

Exclusive Dispatch, Copyright 1926
WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—Do you believe your mailman—faithful, able worker who endures hardships of inclement weather throughout the year to serve the community, is entitled to a rest Christmas day?

Then do your Christmas mailing now—both presents and cards—and write Postmaster General New, petitioning him to rescind his order calling for a delivery Christmas day.

Unless the American public begins to do the bulk of its holiday mailing immediately the postoffice will be swamped at Christmas as usual, department officials told EFS today. Postmen and clerks will suffer as usual. They have extra help during the Christmas season, but this is largely inexperienced and irresponsible, and the brunt of the rush is upon the shoulders of the veterans.

Early mailing of Christmas cards is just as important as early mailing of Christmas parcels.

The last minute mailing of Christmas cards burdens the postal service at a time when it is striving to effect a complete delivery of Christmas mail, it is explained.

Many business concerns have adopted a practice of sending Christmas cards to their patrons. Officials want these concerns to deposit these cards as early as December 15.

Business and advertising concerns are requested to co-operate with the postal service in the handling of Christmas mail by withholding large mailings of circulars, catalogues, etc., during the period from December 10 to January 1.

The use of small or odd sized greeting cards and envelopes is a practice costly to the postal service. The co-operation of manufacturers, dealers and the public generally to the end that the service may be relieved of the burden of handling them is requested.

Cards and envelopes should not be smaller than 3 1/2 by 4 1/2 inches.

When patrons find that they must mail Christmas gifts or letters at such times as will make it probable that they will arrive on Christmas day, they are advised to make sure of delivery by affixing to each such article a special delivery stamp, the department says.

He'll be grateful if you do your Christmas mailing immediately and let him spend his Christmas with his family.

IF YOU WANT YOUR CHRISTMAS PARCELS TO ARRIVE SAFELY—
"Wrap securely, address plainly, mail early." This time-honored warning is being broadcast by the local postoffice.

If you want your Christmas parcels to arrive as promptly and as safely as possible, you must observe the following:

Use strong, durable containers. Strong paper and heavy twine. Tie securely. Limit of size—84 inches in length and girth combined. Limit of weight—70 pounds, if for delivery locally or in first, second or third zone—50 pounds to other zones.

It is requested that senders do not inclose written communications in parcels as they will subject the entire parcel to postage at the letter rate. The exception is that written greetings such as "Merry Christmas," "Happy New Year," "With Best Wishes" may be placed on or in parcels of third or fourth class (parcel post) mail.

Books may bear simple dedicatory inscriptions not of a personal nature. "Beware the Dead Letter Office," it is urged. "Millions of letters and packages reach this office every year owing to incorrect or insufficient addressing, poor packing or disregard in some other respect of necessary requirements."

Disaster—Rescue Crews Hurried To Blast Scene

FRANCISCO, Ind., Dec. 9.—Thirty-eight miners were believed dead and dying in mine No. 2 of the Francisco Mining Company, following a dust explosion at 6:20 here this morning.

Thirty miners, all badly burned, four or five of whom were believed to have been fatally injured, already have been taken out of the wrecked mines, officials said.

The entombed men, officials said, are 286 feet below the surface. Rescue crews were working frantically in an effort to locate the men and bring them out of the mine.

Officials said they thought they might be able to get out all of the entombed men by noon. The first body of a victim to be recovered from the mine was that of W. T. Bird, 58, who was killed instantly. Bird was survived by a widow and two children.

MRS. DOHENY TELLS OF $100,000 LOAN TO SECRETARY FALL

Wife Of Millionaire
Takes Stand In Husband's Defense

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—Mrs. Edward L. Doheny, wife of the multimillionaire oil magnate, took the witness stand at the Fall Doheny trial today to defend her husband from charges of conspiracy in connection with leasing the Elk Hills naval oil reserve from ex-Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall.

Following his mother came E. L. Doheny, Jr., who carried the "little black satchel" to Washington, with $100,000 in currency for Fall. Waiving all immunity, Mrs. Doheny told of her part in the $100,000 loan made by Doheny to Fall, which the government contends constituted a bribe.

Fall gave a demand note for the money, she declared. The note was torn in half and her husband gave her the part containing the signature. This was done, she said, so that Fall would not be pressed for the money in event that anything happened to her or her husband.

COMMITTEE NAMED BY GOVERNOR WILL PROBE HOME NEEDS

Investigators Will Report
Findings To Legislature

Colonel T. E. Andrews, superintendent of the Ohio Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphan's Home, confirms a report Thursday that Governor Vic Donahey has appointed a special committee to inquire into the conditions and needs at the orphanage and submit a report to the state legislature.

Members of the committee will probably visit the institution sometime next week, possibly on Wednesday, Colonel Andrews said.

The committee is composed of a member of the board of trustees of the Home, State Adjutant General Frank D. Henderson and possibly two representatives of the Child Welfare Committee of the American Legion and Spanish-American War veterans organization.

Col. R. G. Allen, Washington C. H., member of the trustee board at the Home, and Major Milton D. Campbell, Cincinnati, chairman of the Child Welfare Committee, of the Legion, have been named on the committee.

Governor Donahey made his appointments following resolutions drawn up by the welfare committee of the Legion and panish-American War Veterans Association at a series of meetings at the institution.

Large requests for appropriations for new equipment, repairs, additions and betterments at the Home have been made and the investigating committee will inquire into the exact needs of the orphanage.

The governor, in an address to the Legion convention at Elyria, O., last September, expressed his willingness to appoint such a committee.

JURY WILL DECIDE HEART BALM SUIT

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 9.—Final arguments of attorneys in the $50,000 heart-balm suit of Mrs. Grace Ansell against Mrs. Sadie M. Rose, in which Mrs. Ansell alleges that Mrs. Rose alienated the affections of her husband, Horace G. Ansell, former Pittsburgh insurance man, were under way in common pleas court here today.

The case was expected to reach the jury this afternoon.

Mrs. Rose, testifying in her own defense, denied Mrs. Ansell's testimony to the effect that she stole the love of Ansell while his wife was on a visit in California.

She also denied that she had embezzled Ansell at a party given by mutual friends, as other witnesses testified. Mrs. Rose is an attractive blonde widow. She declared that Ansell was merely a "good friend" and had been the friend of her husband.

KING FERDINAND IS REPORTED SERIOUS AFTER OPERATION

Surgery Makes Ruler Permanent Invalid—Government Prepared For Emergency—Marie May Be Regent

BUCHAREST, Dec. 9.—King Ferdinand's condition has taken a more serious turn. Physicians stated today that it may be necessary to perform a third operation on the king. Dr. Hartmann, who had planned to leave for Paris after the second operation yesterday, has deferred his departure.

The king does not realize how serious his condition is but members of his family have been advised that he may make a critical turn at any moment.

The official communiques continue optimistic but it is learned that the death of the king would not surprise his physicians, who give him five months as the outside limit of his life.

The second operation, which was performed yesterday, will make the king a permanent invalid, it is stated, and has seriously taxed his heart.

WASHINGTON MONEY TROUBLE OWN FAULT

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 9.—Financial straits of Washington C. H., recently threatened with suspension of most of all municipal functions, are due to the city's failure to make proper provision for debts H. D. Breese, state examiner, reported.

"The city has not made proper provision for debt service for several years," Breese reported. "Retrenchment should have started seven years ago."

City council, he said, probably was not familiar with the city's true financial condition because the records were in such shape proper data could not be obtained.

GOVERNMENT OF OHIO FACING $5,000,000 DEFICIT JULY 1

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 9.—Figures supporting the claim that the government of Ohio faces a deficit of about $5,000,000 on July 1, were before Governor Vic Donahey today.

In a joint statement furnished the governor by State Finance Director Walter E. Baker and Merl Brennenman, state superintendent of the budget, assertion was made that the state's annual revenues must be increased at least $7,000,000 or $8,000,000 if state government "policies of the past two

JUROR UNSEATED BY STATE EXHAUSTING CHALLENGE RIGHTS

Believe Jury Will Be Obtained Friday To Try McDermott

COURT HOUSE, Canton, O., Dec. 9.—The state today lost all further right to peremptorily challenge any potential juror in the trial of Pat McDermott when it exhausted its final challenge for cause on Mrs. Minnie Miller, wife of a Canton policeman.

Mrs. Miller had been tentatively seated on the jury since Tuesday. The defense had six peremptory challenges left.

Nearly all of a special panel of forty potential jurors called yesterday afternoon while the court adjourned had been served this morning.

Both defense and state attorneys expressed the opinion that a jury would be definitely seated not later than tomorrow, unless unforeseen developments cause a further delay.

At the counsel table, McDermott has been active throughout the selection of a jury and was said by Attorney Homer Durand today to have urged the dismissal of the majority of the seven jurors peremptorily excused by the defense.

The statement of E. L. Mills, another defense attorney, that he might possibly place Ben Rudner and Louis Mazer on the witness stand during the murder trial of McDermott, was scouted by the prosecution.

Rudner and Mazer were jointly indicted with the dapper Pat McDermott in connection with the Mellett murder and are scheduled to be tried later.

A meeting of the ambassadors' conference was scheduled for this afternoon in Paris to confirm M. Briand's and Herr Stresemann's decision.

$5,000 REWARD—Will be given by Mrs. Ivy Giberson to the party giving any information that would lead to the arrest and conviction of the person that shot and killed William Giberson at Lakehurst, N. J. Communicate with J. H. Richmond, Lakehurst, N. J.

MRS. IVY GIBERSON AND THE ADVERTISEMENT SHE HOPES WILL FREE HER FROM PRISON

TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 9.—It is a fact, impressed on the world by experience, that it pays to advertise. But WILL it pay Mrs. Ivy Giberson to advertise?

Mrs. Giberson, convicted of the murder of her husband, William Giberson, at their home in Lakehurst, and sentenced to serve the remainder of her life in the New Jersey state prison here, is now attempting to gain her freedom through unique means. After four years in the prison, without ever having asked for a pardon or parole, she told her mother, Mrs. Leroy H. Richmond, of Lakehurst, to insert an advertisement in the newspaper offering a reward of $5,000 for the apprehension of "the real slayer or slayers."

Giberson, owner of a chain of saw mills in Ocean county, was murdered in the early morning hours of Aug. 14, 1922. He had been shot between the eyes after being chloroformed.

Men employed on the Jersey Central railroad, a stone's throw from the Giberson home, heard a woman screaming for help. They hurried into the house, where Mrs. Giberson, greatly excited, related how two burglars had entered the home, bound and gagged her, then killed and robbed her husband.

The burglary story looked good to the authorities for a time. Finally Prosecutor Jayne, of Ocean county, borrowed Ellis H. Parker, noted detective of Burlington county. One of the first things Parker discovered was that there were two revolvers in the house and three holsters. Mrs. Giberson declared that her husband had disposed of his third weapon. Parker began a search and found a revolver concealed in an out building.

No signs of a struggle were found in the house and there was no evidence of any one having broken into the building. The chloroform used on the victim and the rope which Mrs. Giberson said had been used to tie her, were found to belong in the family.

On this circumstantial evidence Mrs. Giberson was convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment. She fought the case in the higher courts, which decided against her. So far there have been no responses to the advertisement, which has attracted wide attention despite its small space.

Mrs. Giberson, who is forty-two years old, is very stout. She is a model prisoner and spends most of her time sewing. She exercises by walking in the prison yard one hour each day.

Young Herr understudied Robert Fox in the part and assumed the role after Fox was stricken with grip. The show was packed for the second performance Wednesday when the home-talent production, written and directed by John T. Sutton, was presented with huge success.

Turn the rascals out—the headache, biliousness, indigestion, the sick, sour stomach and bad colds—turn them out tonight and keep them out with Cascarets.

Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then and never know the misery caused by a lazy liver, clogged bowels, or an upset stomach.

Don't put in another day of distress. Let Cascarets cleanse your stomach; remove the sour, fermenting food; take the excess bile from your liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poison in the bowels. Then you will feel great.

A Cascaret tonight straightens you out by morning. They work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from any drug store means a clear head, sweet stomach, and clean, healthy liver and bowel action for months. Children love Cascarets because they never gripe or sicken.

STILL BOUND TOGETHER

To assume that because England has made public acknowledgment of equality of status between the dominions and the mother country, the British empire has been reorganized or disorganized, shows a most imperfect conception of the great Anglo-Saxon federation and its history.

When the Balfour report was made to the imperial conference, some commentators leaped to the conclusion that the empire had been broken up and could exist no more. A cartoonist, inspired by this common notion, depicted John Bull loosening the bonds which kept together the British Isles, Australia, Canada, South Africa and the rest.

As a matter of fact, those ties for many years have not been tight enough to bind. England learned her lesson from the American Revolution, and throughout the nineteenth century pursued a liberal and generous policy toward colonies settled by her own people. There was no more taxation without representation, and remarkably little interference of any sort from London.

When the world war broke out, England needed troops and needed them badly. But she did not attempt to conscript men from her dominions by act of parliament or order of the minister of defense. It might not have worked if she had, but the point is that such a measure was not necessary. The dominions responded nobly, and the troops they sent were among the best in the allied armies.

England needs no solemn treaty to hold her colonies. The bond between them is at once more elastic and more powerful than any written document; there is no more need of an agreement in writing than there is need of an English constitution in writing.

The lion knows her cubs, and the cubs know their mother.

HE DOESN'T KNOW HISTORY

Former Solicitor General James M. Beck, it seems, is unduly pessimistic regarding the times he lived in and too much disposed to look back upon previous generations as exemplifying virtues that are now almost lost to the degenerate present. In telling a Philadelphia audience what is wrong with this generation he berated the Americans of today for neglecting their civic and political duties and giving undue attention to what is ignoble and insignificant. One of his critical observations was reported thus:

"Men who wouldn't go around the corner to vote would sit in a torrential rain and watch two bruisers knock each other into a state of insensibility. That's how the American mind and American race is slowly reverting to the neolithic age. Yet, in regard to the event which took place late in September, I listened in over the radio like 20,000,000 others."

The former solicitor general did not disclose how he ascertained to a certainty that there was a single civic backslider in that huge audience which saw the Dempsey-Tanney fight and, even though he has said some non-voters were there, those who know the fight fan type can successfully refute the insinuation that it is not the voting type.

Without going back to the days of ancient Greece when Olympian games excited the populace to frenzies of enthusiasm, the attention of Mr. Beck is called to a famous pugilistic encounter at Farnborough, England, in 1860, when a young gentleman named Heenan, representing the United States, met the English champion, Sayers, in a battle for international supremacy. So intense was the interest that parliament retired to the ringside and the flower of the English aristocracy and high government offices were represented.

How does the government's former attorney explain the fact that England and this country have survived the sixty-six years that have elapsed since the degenerating fight?

SONGS of a HOUSEWIFE
By Marjorie K. Rawlings

"NO CATS TODAY"

(Suggested by G. M. R.)

I must be "spotted." Half the town
Must know I've never once turned down
A single kitten, lone and stray,
Or sent a homeless cat away.

The neighbors bring me nine-day kits,
And cats with mange and cats with fits.
I'm doomed to mother 'til I die,
Unwanted tom-cats with one eye!

I find, when fat from milk and cream,
Good homes for some. Then when I seem
To be well rid of cats once more,
I find six new ones at my door.

A home for indigent cats, is mine.
I think I shall erect a sign,
Hung just outside my gate, to say,
"All vacancies filled. No cats today!"

Slush Fund Artists Reaches Golden Gate

Keeping HEALTHY
By Dr. A. F. Currier

THE GREAT WHITE PLAGUE

Briefly, tuberculosis, universal scourge of men and animals attacks all tissues, is the "white plague" in 50 to 75 per cent of human beings, but is often curable, even spontaneously.

It reappears in families until they are wiped out or are hardened by admixture with tough and resisting stock.

It may appear in a community as an epidemic and disappear entirely in a few years.

It is infectious and caused by the bacillus discovered by Koch. It is also moderately contagious, especially for those who have poor resistance. It emerges from the sputum, the discharges from the bowels and bladder, and the discharges from tuberculosis sores. It floats in the air, becomes attached to walls and floors, gets into water, milk and other fluids, is in animal tissues and in all places frequented by men or animals.

Sunlight destroys it, otherwise its victims would be even more numerous.

It enters the body by the air passages, or an opening in the skin. It is often acquired from milk and imperfectly cooked or raw meat. Usually it is deposited on the mucous membrane of the air passages and from this it is absorbed into the blood or lymph current.

The lungs are more often attacked than other organs, but if the tissues are weak or the bacilli especially virulent, it will attack the membranes lining the organs of the chest and abdomen and those of the brain and joints. It is also frequently found in the bones, the skin, the glands, in different parts of the body, the kidneys, bladder, intestines and liver.

The bacilli grow and multiply in tissues and produce poisons causing cell irritation and inflammation with great increase in the number of cells. These cells form clumps or seed-like masses, gray in color, and are embedded in, or attached to the tissues; then follow ulcers and abscesses, which heal with difficulty or not at all.

In tubercular peritonitis the abdominal cavity may be hugely distended with fluid, while the peritoneum itself is studded with millions of the pearl-like tubercles. After a time they disintegrate, become cheesy and may disappear, become hard like lime, or corrode and ulcerate the surrounding tissues. When they corrode blood vessels, as in the lungs, hemorrhage results, pus, blood and disintegrated tissues are expectorated and a hole or cavity is left in the lungs. Hence those who have tuberculous cavities must breathe fast in order to get air enough to aerate the blood.

Tuberculosis has many varieties and symptoms, and it may appear, subside and reappear.

It may progress rapidly and be fatal in a few weeks; or it may become chronic with fatal result, or happily, with recovery or it may last for years, gradually forming new and hard tissues, sapping the strength and sometimes yielding to some other disease.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Mrs. W. H.: I am greatly annoyed by very large breasts. What can I do to reduce their size?

Answer—If I were you I would not interfere with them. If you insist upon it a rubber bandage might be worn around the body, the pressure being regulated from day to day.

Ask Dr. Currier that medical question that has been puzzling you. Send your letter to fifty words and send stamp, addressed envelope for reply. He cannot, of course, make individual diagnoses, and he reserves the right to decide as to the propriety of queries.

Even in these days when a great deal of preparation is not necessary to get ready for the holidays, it is nice to have a little home-made candy in the house. Usually the younger members of the household will bestir themselves in behalf of the sweet-making.

DIVINITY FUDGE

Put two-thirds cup of sugar and one-third cup of water in a small sauce pan. In another sauce pan put two cups of sugar, two-thirds cup of corn syrup and two-thirds cup of water. Stir second portion until sugar is dissolved, put over fire and boil until mixture forms a soft ball in cold water. Twenty minutes after starting this mixture put the first sauce pan on the stove and cook until it forms a very hard ball when tried in cold water. Beat two egg whites very stiff, add slowly the syrup which was cooked to a soft ball and beat constantly until stiff, using a wooden spoon. Then add slowly syrup which was cooked to hard ball and continue beating as long as possible. Add one-third cup of candied cherries, one-third cup green citron and two-thirds cup of almonds. Fudges should be molded in a shallow tin.

PRALINES

Combine one cupful of brown sugar, two cupfuls of white sugar, three tablespoons of corn syrup, three-quarters cups of evaporated milk with one-half cup of water, one tablespoon of maple sugar. Boil to soft ball stage, cool before beating add one and one-half cups of pecans and beat until stiff and creamy. Drop from a spoon onto buttered sheet.

UNUSUAL PLOT IS BASIS OF PLAY TO BE PRESENTED HERE

Sutton Vane's play, "Outward Bound" which will be presented at the High School auditorium Friday evening by the Antioch Players is a play of a peculiar type.

Its plot is the story of a group of passengers on a trans-oceanic liner and their weird adventures. The passengers were a strange combination for such a voyage—a minister, a drunkard, lovers, people whom chance had thrown together. They become conscious of a peculiar atmosphere which settled over the ship and realize that they have all died and are sailing in this unlighted, unnamed ship over the River Styx.

How does it feel to be dead? "Queer!" says one character but their unearthly attendant answers, "not when you get used to it, sir."

"Tell me one thing—NOW." "Anything I can, sir."

"Where are we sailing for?" "Heaven, sir. And hell, too. It's the same place you see."

So ends the first act and in this same weird atmosphere the play goes on, carrying the audience through moments of humor and moments of actual terror.

"Outward Bound" was a decided success in New York and Chicago and on the road. It is being brought to Xenia only by payment of high royalty.

GIRLIETTES

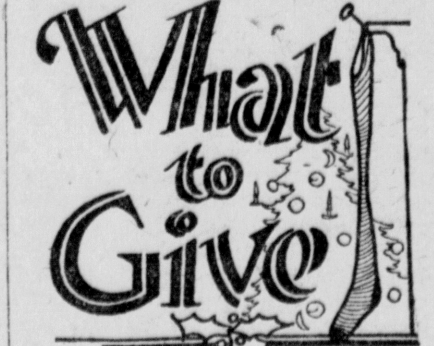

KELLYGRAMS by FRED C KELLY

DISCOVERING A REAL WIFE

I have just been talking with a young man who sometimes takes me into his confidence and he told me an interesting little story about a trip from New York, where he now lives, back to his home town in the Midwest.

After a struggle of several years trying to establish himself in business, he turned the corner a few months ago and good profits are now beginning to come.

Now, ordinarily, the first thing

CHILDREN

Most children who have reached the talking stage are very definite in the things they want Santa Claus to bring them. It is the helpless infant who welcomes a present which has nothing to do with rattles and oletoth dolls.

One of the newest things on the market for that portion of our population which can't make its wants known is a musical powder box which is both useful and entertaining.

For the "tailor-made" baby, who is sick of everlasting pink and white downy comforts, there is the carriage robe of blue and tan broadcloth with a monogram in the corner. Certainly the baby is being considered more nowadays than ever before, as a visit to the infants' department of any of our large stores will convince you.

One thing which is always in demand is the sweater, preferably of the slip-over variety.

Never before have there been so many fascinating toys and there are all too many from which to choose. The child likes small toys almost always in preference to the larger ones. And in spite of the fact that the size of the picture books would seem to indicate that they were the most popular with the youngsters, such is not the case. A little book with colored pictures is always preferred to the more expensive and unwieldy variety. The reason is that the child can handle it more easily.

One of the new toys of the year, certain to appeal to the little girl, is the miniature kitchen which is completely fitted out with range, cupboards and saucepans. The grocery store answers the same demand as the small boy. A new toy of this sort is the doll's auto caravan for camping, furnished completely and attached to an automobile.

Books are fine for the older child, provided some taste is used in their selection and they are not chosen by the doubtful method of "I don't want anything over fifty cents, he's just a child." If you do not know children's books yourself, follow a prescribed list or ask advice of a specially-trained librarian.

It is best to give a growing child something that makes him use his ingenuity and imagination. Building sets, water color outfits, modeling clay, are excellent for this purpose.

How to Achieve Beauty

CHIC AS AN ALLY TO BEAUTY

Diction and Manner of Speech

Today I am going to touch a little on diction, because I think this is a subject that is closely allied to beauty. I have often seen girls who were so perfectly beautiful of face and charming of figure that, as they approached me, I thought they were fit to grace any occasion.

But the minute they uttered their first sentence, their manner of talking entirely contradicted the physical appearance and completely disillusioned me.

Diction is a study in itself. Many people in the ordinary walks of life, upon meeting and talking with a person in the inner circle of society and noticing the little niceties of diction are under the impression that this person is to the manner born, whereas it is something that has been studied and cultivated and is a possession that once attained is priceless.

You would be surprised if you knew how many of the debutantes of New York, daughters of prominent families, have had to actually take a course of study in the fine points of diction to give finesse to their manner of speech.

Personally, I think it rather unusual that high school courses do not include it more emphatically along with other studies, as it is so important later in life. In order to master the fine points of diction, one must study and practice it, just the same as any other accomplishment.

The first fundamental in attaining proper diction is the attainment of proper breath control. This is especially necessary if you plan to do any public speaking. In order to learn how to breathe properly, it is important that you realize just how far down into your bodies your lungs extend, so that you will know how much air it is necessary to inhale in order to fill up your lungs. So many people have the impression that the main portion of their lungs is in the upper part of their chests, whereas, in reality the lungs extend down under the floating ribs. Filling them up with deep breaths of air that gives you a reserve and, in turn, perfect breath control and an even flow of words instead of emitting them in "bunches."

A good way to test your lung capacity is to put the palms of your hands, flatly against the lower end of your ribs, draw in a deep breath, see how far you can count in measured tones. If you can hold your breath in while you count fifteen, you are striking a fair average. If you can hold it and count as high as twenty, you are doing very well, and if you can count as high as twenty-two or three, you are doing exceptionally well.

It is also interesting to know that the human voice from the vocal chords alone can only emit one sound and that is "ah." All the rest of speech is a matter of the way you use your tongue, lips and breath. So it is important that you move your tongue and your lips, to round out your words. Some people talk, scarcely moving their lips, consequently it is hard to understand what they are saying. Throw your voice to the front of your mouth before speaking, and emit the words by means of your tongue and lips. Don't be afraid to use your lips freely in pronouncing.

A good exercise for the lips is pronouncing the word "p-r-u-n-e-s." It is also good to purse up the lips as in pronouncing the word "cold" and "gold," and then to still greater degree by saying "shoot" and "boot."

Watch the pronunciation of words with "o's" like "not" and "cot," be careful not to make them too long. Also watch your final consonants and be careful not to drop them as in "and." And watch your "u's" as in "suit," instead of pronouncing it as though it were spelled "soot," say it as though it were spelled "suet."

In a word like "Tuesday," don't pronounce it as though it were spelled "Toosday," but as though it had a short "i" as in gift and a "oo" as in boot. This also applies to the "ew" in "few" and in "news."

Bob Morton Will Captain Central 1927 Grid Team

HALFBACK ELECTED TO PILOT GRIDDERS LEARNED AT DINNER

Athletic Association Dinner Attracts Crowd Of 100

Election of Robert Morton, Junior, as captain of Central High School's 1927 football squad was announced at the grid banquet honoring the victorious 1926 grid team, sponsored by the school athletic association, at the high school cafeteria Wednesday night.

Morton sparked on the Blue and White team during the past campaign. Playing his second year and his first as a regular on the team, Morton distinguished himself in every game by the versatility and individual brilliance of his play and practically won the Troy game single-handed. He played a half-back position and was more than a triple threat man. He could kick if need be, carry the ball, run the ends, plunge the line, pass the pigskin and was unusually adept at receiving passes and in broken field running. He was accorded a tremendous ovation when the result of the election was announced and it is conceded he will make a popular leader.

Some time ago letter men on the squad cast a secret ballot to select a captain for next season and the result was not disclosed until the banquet Wednesday. Coach Victor Kolb, in announcing the new grid pilot, expressed satisfaction with the choice of his charges.

More than 100 students and business men of the city attended the football party and enjoyed a short speaking program, flavored by reminiscences of football incidents of past years.

John Ballantyne, member of the faculty and former Central coach, who has been associated with the school for several years in different capacities, opened the program with a short talk of welcome, following a brief but spicy speech, by Henry Flynn, who acted as toastmaster.

Short talks were also given by Fred Shultz and George Geyer, Central grads and one-time grid stars, after which Max Marshall, captain of this year's eleven, introduced members of the squad.

A sumptuous three-course dinner was served. Members of the 1926 grid squad who were honor guests at the affair were: Marshall, Smith, Gibney, Morton, Doak, Scott, Higgins, Clemans, Rakoff, Hill, Graham, Butts, Henrie, Mattox, Riley, Adair, Scurry, Murray, Cook, Rich, Haverstick, and Hunt, North and Grandlin, managers.

CAN THIS BE TRUE? STEELE HIGH OF DAYTON LOSES TO ROSS FIVE

Victors Score Winning Points In Overtime Period Of Game That Ended A Tie—Score Is 18 to 17

Utilizing a brilliant high-scoring offense and strong, heady defense to best advantage, Ross High School put a crimp in the championship aspirations of Steele High School of Dayton, by defeating the visitors 18 to 17 in an overtime struggle on the Ross floor Wednesday night.

The contest saw two evenly matched teams fighting for the upper hand and Steele, playing its first game of the season, met with unlooked for resistance.

One point separated the teams at the half with Ross leading 11 to 10. The game ended with the score tied 16 to 16. In the extra period Brakefield caged a field goal for the winning points while Steele was making a foul.

Brakefield was the outstanding star of the game in a point-getting way, shooting three fielders and two fouls for eight of his team's eighteen points. Andrews led the Steele scoring with seven markers.

Ross was fortunate in having a group of boys representing the school that kept their heads during the close struggle. Nothing appeared to fluster them not even the wonderful reputation of the visitors and a flashy consistent attack was displayed at all times.

CEDARVILLE OPENS MEMORIAL GYM WITH DEFEAT OF ANTIOCH

Coach Borst's Lads Run Away From Visiting Quintet

Cedarville College, long a thorn in the side of the championship hopes of Antioch College, defeated its traditional athletic rival in the first home basketball game of the season in rather easy style 23 to 17 Wednesday night on the floor of the new Alford Memorial Gymnasium at Cedarville.

The gym was opened for basketball games for the first time Wednesday but the formal dedication will not take place until some time in February.

Cedarville outclassed its opponent from start to finish and won as it pleased. Coach Borst's team displayed a high-class brand of pass-work and floor work that swept Antioch off its feet.

Coach C. E. Kennedy's lads were playing their first game of the year and many faults developed that must be corrected if a successful season is to be enjoyed.

The contest developed no individual stars. Orr and Nagley started for Cedarville at forwards, Jacobs at center, and McLean and Gordon at guards. Only one substitution was made, Rockhold replacing Jacobs.

Cedarville led 9 to 8 at the half, and the visitors were ahead only once, leading 6 to 5 on one occasion.

Borst's boys will play Urbana Junior College at Urbana Saturday night and Bluffton December 21 in the next home game of the season. A return game will also be arranged for later in the season, probably in February.

In a preliminary game Selma High School defeated the college second team 11 to 10.

The Piercing Pains of Neuritis Can Now be Stopped

When you've tried everything you can think of and nothing seems to even relieve those piercing, agonizing pains, just go to Sayre's Drug Store or some other good druggist and get a bottle of Allenbur Special Formula No. 2. Be sure you get No. 2 which comes in capsule form.

Take these little dark green capsules as directed and notice how in about twenty-four hours they have considerably reduced, if not entirely banished, those persistent, nerve racking pains that have caused you many sleepless nights. A few more doses and the pains have left you forever.

While this particular formula was compounded for the purpose of conquering painful, Gouty conditions and what is known as Rheumatoid Arthritis—a knotty, painful swelling of the joints—it has proven wonderfully successful in all forms of Neuritis and Sciatic Nerve Pains.

You needn't be afraid of its containing dope of any kind—it doesn't. Such things are only makeshifts and can only at the best give temporary relief.

Be sure you've got Neuritis and then get Allenbur Special Formula No. 2. Sayre's Drug Store can supply you.

FUN FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY

"WHO'LL PLAY SANTA CLAUS?"

Father wouldn't mind playing Santa Claus if it weren't for the fact that he can't get away with just playing, he has to come across! In playing Santa he is being played for a fish!

The question is not where you are going to spend Christmas, but how much you are going to have left after spending it!

In the good old days you rode for miles in a sleigh to get your dinner, now-all the "sleaving" and "riding" is done at home. The turkey is under-done in the same place!

Most Christmas spirit is not old stuff, some of it comes over the border. There may be reindeer on carries nowadays has cigarettes in it.

It has become the thing to think up all the people that you went to school with and never liked, and send them Christmas cards. A Christmas card is something that you pick out with your husband until you have been married two years and then you let him put the stamps on the envelopes.

What started out to be a very simple card with a simpler greeting has ended in a card that includes everything but a pass to the world series. We go the next person one better in the matter of greetings, with the idea that a slap on the back is worth two on the

the house-top, but father sees 'em wrist.

You start out with fifty cards and by the time the early arrivals are in you have to order 200 more and send the relatives notes on lined paper. Well, the thought is there, but most people prefer their own. Whoever thought out the plan of cheap Christmases with Christmas cards has probably gone back to passing out diamonds. If it takes that much money to say Merry Christmas, let's hope they never set it to music.

The plush works are going in for cards that make postmen round-shouldered before their time. All those who have played Santa Claus know that it's a Turkish bath followed by a shower of gifts!

ANTIOCH COLLEGE AWARDED VALUABLE PIECES OF ART WORK FROM CARNEGIE FOUNDATION

Antioch College art department is receiving the first pieces of a large collection awarded it last summer by the Carnegie foundation. A value of between $5,000 and $10,000 is placed on the collection.

In making the gift, the donor seeks to establish the teaching of art on the same basis as that of the teaching of science, having a working library for use in connection with the courses.

At Antioch College, one of twenty schools in the United States and Canada to which similar valuable collections were given, two major art study courses are given, one, applied esthetics, the other, history of art.

Antioch's course in applied esthetics varies greatly from the usual art course in that a studio was fitted out for use in connection and equipped with art collections formed by the instructor, Walter H. Abell, during a year he spent in Europe for that purpose as well as for study.

Collections awarded by the Carnegie Foundation represent reproductions, original prints, textiles and books and are designed to stand as a systematic representation of occidental art. Their aim coincides with that of Mr. Abell in his courses, visualizing esthetic truths, or studying the canons of art in art objects rather than in the abstract.

The major unit of the collections, which are virtually identical for each college, is a set of 1,800 reproductions of the greatest works in architecture, sculpture and painting. Of these approximately one-quarter are in color facsimile. They have been taken from the best collections of reproductions in the world where possible; where subjects wanted have not existed in reproduction, special reproductions have been made for this purpose. In this collection are believed to be represented all the major currents in the stream of art—individuals, periods, schools. The objects have been photographed in whole and in part, to show detail. The photos vary in size from eight by ten to sixteen by twenty, with a few even larger according to the subject and are uniformly mounted with labels giving the name of the artist, the setting of the work as to school and technique, something of the life and personality of the artist and that for which the work is distinguished. Some analysis also is given. The reproductions will be kept in a cabinet, which also is being provided.

The second unit is a set of fifty original prints showing different processes of print-making and the work of different periods and notable men. These are nearly all ways from contemporary printings, but when more modern reproductions do greater justice to the artist they are used, as with some of the Whistlers. These begin with Burgmaler and Volgemut in the fifteenth century, cover the woodblocks of this century and the succeeding centuries and come down to the best work of the nineteenth century and modern times. In the earlier period are Urs Graf, Dürer, Hans Leonhard Schaufelin and the engraved portraits of the seventeenth century. Among later men are Goya, Daumier, Richard Earlom, Delacroix, Meryon, Raffet, Corot, Manet, Turner, Whistler. For these also mounted and labeled, a special portfolio is provided.

Third is a collection of thirty-five textiles dating from antiquity to modern days, chosen to illustrate design, color, geography, period and technique, from Coptic tapestry weave to home-made products. Here are shown pieces of primitive Congo weave, Indian kinkob and embroidery, Cashmere weave, Chinese tapestry, embroidery, brocade and damask, Manila weave, Bolivian and Central American fabrics, Near Eastern rugs, Greek embroideries, sixteenth century velvets and brocade, Russian weave, Indian prints, English cotton prints, Paisley shawls and modern printed silks.

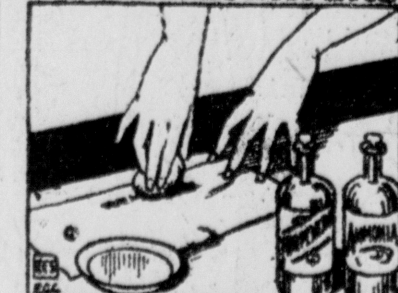

The books constitute a good working library in the history of art and in the analysis of all arts, including decoration and decoration of the theatre. They are English, French and German, some of them equally valuable in text and reproductions; some on the arts in general, some in definite arts, some on special periods, others on individuals. The art book shops of the art capitals of the world have been combed to get twenty copies of each work, some of which are rare.

Finally, there is a catalogue annotated in some detail, which is itself an admirable example of the graphic arts. In addition to Antioch, Miami University was the only other school in Ohio to receive this award.

The only condition on which the college gets the collections is that it use the material for teaching and set aside a suitable room for the collection and use it as a center of art activities in the college, which, at Antioch, is represented by the studio of applied esthetics.

WIFE PRESERVERS

A solution of equal parts of ammonia and turpentine will remove undelible ink marks.

Let The new HOOVER help her to be happy

And rest assured it will! For this amazing New Hoover is more than twice as efficient as former Hoovers—will remove 131 per cent more dirt from rug, in the ordinary cleaning time! That's because, while it sweeps and air-cleans, it also BEATS, by means of POSITIVE AGITATION—the only cleaning method which removes the deeply embedded grit.

So this Christmas, give her a Hoover! Give her the golden hours to be happy. Take away the handicap of inefficient, old-fashioned tools against which she is striving day after day to make home the happy haven both of you want it to be!

Remember, too, you'll be conserving your Christmas cash, for you need pay but $6.25 down—the balance split so you'll hardly sense it. Won't you stop at our Demonstration Booth and let us show you?

WILBERFORCE UNIVERSITY ASKS BIG INCREASE IN 1927 BUDGET

Wilberforce University is asking for $599,400 in its annual budget for the next fiscal year, filed Wednesday with the state superintendent of budgets at Columbus, is seeking an increase of more than 100 per cent.

Requests are mainly for salaries, maintenance, buildings and additions for the eighteen months' period beginning next July 1. The last appropriations were for two years, and in making a proportionate reduction in them for purposes of comparison, it will be noted that Wilberforce is asking for a great increase.

Principle items in the budget on file include $232,000 for salaries along with $117,000 for maintenance and $548,000 for new buildings, equipment and remodeling.

Included in the latter item are requests for $120,000 for a boys' trade building, $125,000 for power house and equipment, and $50,000 for mechanical equipment and numerous smaller items.

The merchants subscribing to this advertisement believe that the Antioch Players are helping Xenia to solve a problem which every community of its size in the country is facing—that of providing its citizens with the opportunity of seeing the better-known new plays which only Broadway and few large cities see at the present time. The "road show" of good reputation is seldom seen any more and the Little Theatre groups throughout the country are stepping forward to fill the theatrical needs of the smaller city.

Xenia is considered as being in the territory served in this way by the Antioch Players with its professionally directed and staged productions of current attractions of a worth-while type.

It is possible for only a very few productions to be worked up and staged during the college year and all of these cannot be brought to Xenia because of other near by communities that must be served.

WOMEN LESS BUG-PROOF THAN MEN

DEAN K. BRUNDAGE, WHOSE RESEARCHES REVEAL THAT WOMEN ARE LESS GERM-PROOF THAN MEN

By J. HERBERT DUCKWORTH
Exclusive Dispatch, Copyright 1926
WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—The female of the species is less germ-proof than the male.

An inferiority of women really does exist. The equality of the sexes is, after all, a myth, as long as the female is less germ-proof than the male.

These seem to be logical conclusions to be drawn from the most thorough investigation ever undertaken into the reasons why people stay home and report sick to the boss. The study was made by Dean K. Brundage, assistant statistician of the U. S. public health service. His material was the records of all absences, during ten years, for one full working day or longer, on account of sickness among the 2,000 employees of the Edison Electric Illumination Co., of Boston.

Such a mass of figures on this subject for a large group of workers for so long a period has never been available before. It was considered particularly interesting because the Edison company does not extract anything from the pay envelope on account of absence for sickness. This made it possible to find out for the first time just how many days a year the average man and woman worker has his or her production interfered with or the normal family routine broken by sickness.

The facts disclosed show that women fail to show up for work on account of sickness to which both are liable oftener than the men. It was found that among the women there were 171 sicknesses to one industrial accident as against twelve sicknesses to one accident among the men.

Colds, and other nose troubles, incapacitated, on the average, seven out of ten women as against four out of ten men.

The days "off" on account of colds were equivalent to two and one-tenth a year for women as against one and four-tenths for men.

There were 202 absences from sickness, exclusive of accidents, among the women to 100 male absences.

The toll of sickness and accidents during the ten years was equivalent to an annual sick leave of fourteen days for women as against eight and nine-tenths for men.

The difference in the frequency of some of the diseases among women compared with men was much greater than for all sicknesses combined. Among these may be mentioned: Neurathenia, nervousness, etc., five and seven-tenths times the male rate; diseases of the ears, three times the male rate; appendicitis, three times the male rate; diseases of the pharynx and tonsils, two and five-tenths times the male rate; neuralgia, neuritis, sciatica, two and four-tenths times the male rate; diseases of the mouth

EARLY MAILING OF CHRISTMAS CARDS SOUGHT BY FRAZER

Early mailing of Christmas cards is just as important as parcels, Postmaster C. S. Frazer declares. Millions of these cards, separate and in envelopes, are mailed each Christmas, he says, and consequently, great congestion and delay occurs in post offices when they are mailed within a day or two of Christmas.

Therefore if you want your Christmas greetings to reach relatives and friends on or before Christmas day, follow the postmaster's instructions in the following paragraph relative to mailing early and be certain of delivery before Christmas.

"Christmas gifts and cards addressed to points within one day's travel should be mailed not later than December 20; within two days' travel, not later than December 18; within three days' travel, not later than December 16; for more distant points, not later than December 14.

"Parcels and cards for local delivery should be mailed not later than December 22. Parcels and envelopes may be endorsed 'Please do not open until Christmas.'"

The Theatre

Have you ever happened to think of the intricate process involved in bringing a cartoon character to life on the movie screen? Cartoon comedies, now one of the most universally followed of the shorter features on a movie house program require virtually as many people to produce as a one-reel comedy and as a rule they require considerable more time to complete. It takes a staff of from twelve to fifteen people two weeks to finish an animated cartoon picture which is shown in less than fifteen minutes on a theater screen.

Animal characters have been used with success in many of these cartoon comedies, for it appears that motion picture fans enjoy seeing four-footed characters go through the same antics and experiences that human beings do. "Felix the Cat" internationally known as an animated cartoon figure, is one of the best-loved of such animals, while the almost human animal characters which roll off through Life Cartoons are rapidly becoming popular.

Four to nine thousand separate drawings are needed for every cartoon reel. These must be made by hand, a tedious and slow process, but one which is essential because no process has been invented thus far which will give the cartoons the lifelike movements required in these comedies.

slipped onto the pegs of the drawing board by the artist and the next positions drawn. The position of the figures on the drawing are changed to suit the action he intends to carry into effect.

For instance, if the figure is to walk across the street, it will need about forty drawings, the character moving about a quarter of an inch on every drawing. To make the figure run, the figure is moved about half an inch or an inch on the drawing. In other words, the faster the cartoon character goes, the more the figure must be moved in each drawing from its previous position. As a result, the faster the action in the comedy, the fewer sketches required.

The drawings are now sent to the tracer, who traces these pencil sketches with India ink on celluloid sheets, the same size and punched at the top to fit the drawing board, placed over the celluloid sketch. When the tracer is finished inking the "cel" goes to other artists who fill in the "blacks" such as the clothing, hat, shoes, etc. Then on the reverse side of the "cel" the figures are painted in with gray opaque water color. This is done so that when the sketches are photographed on the background having furniture, etc., the objects will not show through. This opaque black ground with the figures in black also causes the characters to blot out the background when photographed, making them appear as the human figure would in actual life. The scene is now ready to go to the cameraman to be photographed. The animators prepare charts showing how many exposures are needed on each drawing and these are sent to the camera with the scenes. A regulation size motion picture camera is used.

It is suspended three feet above the table with the lens focused on the scenes to be "shot." Pegs like those used by animators are fastened on the table. The camera is run by an automatic foot pedal so that when the photographer presses, the camera takes one picture. Cooper-Hewitt vapor lamps supply the strong illumination needed, the lamps being fixed so that the light centers on the drawings. The background is now placed on the pegs remaining in this position throughout the scene. "The cels" then are photographed one at a time as marked on the exposure chart. Shooting of each scene in continuity is not essential since as with other pictures, the cartoon is cut and assembled after it gets back from the laboratory. Twelve out of fifteen producing days are needed for the photographer to complete one animated cartoon, so slow and exacting is the progress of "shooting" the completed drawings.

"A woman always believes that she has made a man's career—if she's done no more than to live with him."—Theodore Dreiser, distinguished American novelist, in interview.

"We are forgetting that our indivisible union is composed of indivisible states, with the rights of the union clearly defined and limited. By a process of amendment, surrender, acquiescence and indifference we have been building up a federal government at the expense of the states. In that process we are not only weakening the states, but weakening the national structure as well by making it top-heavy, unwieldy, bureaucratic and remote. And we are invading the rights and liberties of the individual rights which the founders tried to protect and the protection of which has made us a free nation and a great nation."—Albert C. Ritchie, governor of Maryland.

"Our clergy is in danger of secularization. It is overburdened with campaigns, money raising and the secular side of the work. There is something wrong somewhere."—I fear that religion is at low ebb in our churches.—Rt. Rev. Charles P. Anderson, bishop of the Chicago diocese of the Episcopal church.

"A preacher's opinions on that subject are no more valuable than anybody else's."—I think that the prohibition amendment was precipitate, and probably would have been much more effective if we had continued our campaign of education and local option before we plunged so hastily into national prohibition.—Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, noted New York preacher.

HONEY LOU by Beatrice Burton

© JOHNSON FEATURES INC., 1926

CHAPTER XXXIV

The flat on Dulcimer street was all ready by the last Saturday in October.

Every cushion was in place, every curtain hung, every piece of furniture just where it belonged. From every corner something beautiful shone out—a mirror or a Chinese bowl of yellow and blue and rose color.

There was a fern box of carved teakwood that ran along the silk hung windows of the sun-room. Four love birds fluttered about in a big wicker cage above them.

In the kitchen Mary, the new cook, was hard at work cooking the first dinner in the new flat.

Mary Delaney had been the Head's cook until a year ago. Then she had left because of "words" that she had with Grumpy. But the Head had forgiven her and sent her to Honey Lou.

She was fat and talkative—much too talkative.

But her striped dresses were crisp and clean and she settled down into the kitchen of the flat as if she had worked there all her life.

"This is a grand place you have, Miz Wallack," she told Honey Lou that afternoon as she passed through the hallway to answer the doorbell. "Everything of the best, and if you're not happy here 'tis your own fault, I'm saying."

"But, of course, I'm going to be happy here," Honey Lou answered.

Mary sniffed. "Don't you be too sure!" she said gloomily. "None of the young snips that's getting married nowadays is happy."

The last place where I worked was at Mr. Jim Clemens' house—and that little wife of his! That little Mrs. Suzanne—

Whatever she was going to say about Suzanne Clemens was cut short by the arrival of The Head, who had come to look over Jack's new home.

"Hm—"

She made a little grunt in her throat as her eyes took in the rainbow-hued floor pillows, the love birds, the flowered curtains and the vases and bric-a-brac.

"Don't you like it?" asked Honey Lou, anxiously, as she led her from room to room.

The Head shook her magnificent head. "I suppose I'm old-fashioned," she said with a little smile. "But it looks like an Italian street fair to me. All such stuff—"

She scornfully plucked up a powder box from Honey Lou's dressing table.

It was a pale blue box, and when the cover was taken from it, it played a piece of music.

"Angela gave that to me," Honey Lou told her, "and Angela helped me furnish my house. She knew I didn't know what to buy."

"It looks to me as if you'd bought out all of downtown town," The Head retorted. "But if you like it and it suits Jack, that's all that's necessary."

It did suit Jack. Man-like, he knew nothing of house furnishings and the cozy rooms with their deep soft rugs and easy chairs and cheerful-looking lamps suited him down to the ground.

Then, on the first of November, the bills started to come in. Every morning when Mary brought Honey Lou her breakfast there were bills on the tray under the coffee pot.

"I don't like to have breakfast in bed," Honey Lou declared in the beginning. "I want to get up and eat with my very own husband."

And for a few mornings she did up. It seemed wonderful to her at first, to be sitting there with him watching him pepper his eggs. Everything about him was wonderful—as everything about a husband is wonderful to a bride—the way he washed his hair every morning under the shower, the way he could get dressed in two minutes, the things he said, even the way he held his newspaper in one hand while he ate with the other.

But after a week or two Honey Lou began to sleep late once more. After all, there was nothing to do when she did get up early.

Mary took care of the house, and Angela and Suzanne Clemens were never ready to go shopping or driving until ten or eleven o'clock.

"I wish we didn't have Mary," Honey Lou complained to Jack on a cold crisp December morning. "I don't like to all my housework in two hours myself."

"Well, you aren't going to," Jack came back at her firmly. "I didn't marry you to put you to work for me. I'm the one that's going to do the work in this family."

In a way it was fun not to have anything to do. It was fun to meet Angela and Suzanne down town and go Christmas shopping with them.

It seemed like a dream come true to be able to walk into Sabine's luxurious tea-room and order what she wanted, and sign her name at the bottom of the check.

To buy fresh violets at the shop where Angela bought hers, and tell the clerk to charge them to "Mrs. Jack Wallack, junior," and then walk out with them!

She opened a charge account at The Powder Box, the clever little beauty shop where Angela went to have her nails manicured and her hair washed.

She went there two afternoons a week to have her own healthy hair washed and treated with sweet-smelling lotions, to have her nails polished until they shone like pink glass, to have cold cream rubbed into a skin that certainly did not need cold cream.

Late one afternoon she walked into Sabine's
